EXPLANATORY FOREWORD

THE AMERICAN BAR—including THE CANADIAN BAR and THE INTERNATIONAL BAR—comprises a professional directory of lawyers of the world. Every law office in this directory is annually investigated with regard to character, legal ability, and diligence, through personal interviews by our representatives and mail questionnaires emanating from our company headquarters. The length of service of our representatives ranges from two years to nineteen years with the company, the average length of service approximating eight years. Valuable information obtained from the interviews and questionnaires, both of which are confidential, enables us to maintain the traditional standards accepted by our subscribers as reliable and responsible during our sixty-one consecutive years of publication.

THE AMERICAN BAR legal directory is an independent publication printed and copyrighted annually since 1918, and is not a publication of The American Bar Association, with which it has no publishing affiliation. As the name implies, THE AMERICAN BAR lists lawyers practicing in the United States. It differs from general law lists in that it includes only lawyers and law firms in each city as determined by the above-described annual surveys made among leading firms by representatives of the publishers. Its purpose is to make readily and conveniently available to lawyers and their clients everywhere the names and biographical data of lawyers qualified and situated to perform any legal work required.

Containing concise but complete data for every law office admitted to its pages, it sets forth the nature of the practice, individual biographies of its members, and representative clients. The biographical data, first introduced to lawyers in the initial publication sixty years ago, has become a standard requirement for the selection of counsel for important matters.

The Individual Name Directory, an alphabetical index of attorneys, precedes the geographical listing of law offices by state and city.

States, cities, and law firms are listed respectively in alphabetical order.

2043010

Selected state administrative offices are included before each state.

State capitals are indicated below state names.

The names of cities and towns are followed by population figures and county names. Asterisks indicate county seat towns.

In many cases bank listings precede lawyer listings for the convenience of lawyers requiring special information about local matters which the banks are qualified to furnish, or those whose clients may have occasion to transact bank or trust department business in connection with legal affairs.

Important towns for which there are no lawyer listings are named in the alphabetical listing for each state, and referrals are made to the nearest logical points.

Lawyers engaged in general practice, those concentrating in one or more of the various fields of law, and patent and trademark attorneys are included in the general sequence.

Patent and trademark agents appear in the listing following the International section.

Counties and County Seats are listed in a section following THE AMERICAN BAR. Mailing addresses and telephone numbers for every county in the United States are included.
